MSBA summer Tour

Saturday August 14th.

The Maine Sheep Breeders Association invites you to join us for our Open Farm/Mill tour Saturday August 14th.

This event is focused on the fiber side of raising sheep

The tour will begin at 10am at Rite Way Scouring located at 36 Chapel Rd in Waldoboro. Directions are available at <http://www.ritewayscouring.com/Directions.htm>

Rite Way Scouring offers commercial scouring services for all natural fibers. Operating a 4 bowl scouring system, Rite-Way currently has the capacity to wash 200 to 300lbs. of raw fiber a day. The drying process is usually completed in 24 hours, after this we can bale your fiber and arrange for shipping to your mill of choice.

The next stop on the tour will be NEWAIM Fiber Mill also located in Waldoboro approximately 5 miles from Rite Way. The address is 13 Robinson Rd. Directions are available at <http://newaimfibermill.com/directions.shtml> We expect to arrive at this location around 11am.

NEWAIM Fiber Mill is a complete fiber processing mill, including dehairing, using equipment produced by Belfast Mini Mills. The equipment of this scale allows the processing of small batches of fiber so customers know that they are getting their own fleece back. The minimum lot size is only 3 lb. so in many case, individual fleeces can be processed.

Our final destination will be Romney Ridge Farm located at 5 Meadow Rd in Woolwich. We plan to arrive about 12:30pm and spend a half hour or so having a pot luck lunch. Be sure to bring something along to share. Directions to Romney Ridge Farm can be found at <http://www.romneyridgefarm.com/Yarnshop.html>

Romney Ridge has a retail shop in the premises where they sell yarns produced from Maine raised fiber. There will be a MSBA BOD meeting following the completion of the tour.

June 19th, the M.S.B.A. held a field trip to Blue Ribbon Farm owned by Bob and Mary Burr of Mercer. The farm tour demonstrated the 2009 installation of both a cement apron installed around the sheep barn and the installation of an adjoining manure pit. Peter A'Bello from the Somerset County regional National Resource & Conservation Service (NRCS) was present to answer questions and give advice to interested participants.

In addition to the manure management system, the Burr's showcased their high tunnel greenhouse (32' x 48'). The composted sheep manure feeds the soil of the greenhouse and this integrated system allows for year round vegetable production based on the resource knowledge of Elliot Coleman's method. With no auxiliary heat, just the two layers of plastic over the metal framework, vegetables can be harvested twelve months of

It was one of those hot, early summer days, but with the breeze under the shade of several large trees, the potluck lunch made for an enjoyable summer experience.

American Sheep Industry 2010 Spring Legislative Trip

-Brant Miller

On May 5, 2010, I had the privilege to travel to Washington, DC for the American Sheep Industry Annual Spring Legislative Trip. The goal of this trip is for producers from the entire country to represent the collective interest of the American sheep industry directly with their Congressional Delegations. Nearly 73 producers from 25 states gathered in Washington for the 3 day event.

On Wednesday, we arrived in the capitol city and gathered for the 2010 American Lamb Barbecue. There were over 200 guests including a few Senators and Representatives and many Congressional staff and USDA officials. The lamb was donated by Mountain States Rosen and was excellent. The BBQ offers an opportunity to discuss many sheep industry issues in a very informal atmosphere. Good food and a beverage or two loosens lips and information flows. I extended invitations to our Senators, but they both had prior commitments. Next year I want to invite all four of our delegation with the hope of getting at least one to attend.

On Thursday, I was able to meet in person with Senator Collins, Senator Snowe, and Representative Michaud and their staff. I also met with Representative Pingree's staff followed by a brief chat with her at the end. I've been on this trip three other times and never succeeded in meeting directly with more than one of the delegation.

I extended a thank-you to all the delegation for their assistance in working with the FAA concerning the low flight levels of the Condor 1 and Condor 2 flight training over Western Maine. These flights have potentially negative have an impact on livestock in these areas and all four of them teamed together to work on this issue.

Other industry issues that we discussed include:

- Eastern Region Wildlife Services funding
- Mandatory Price Reporting (due to expire in September)
- 2012 Farm Bill
- Food Safety
- Scrapie
- Estate Tax
- Equal Access to Justice

Of particular interest to some Maine producers, we discussed the H2A immigrant program. Most if not all the delegation were unaware that some Maine sheep producers use (or try to use...) the program. The complexity of the program has made it all but unavailable and it has become a real impediment to growth for some Maine producers. The delegation all agreed to learn more about the program and to try to make it more accessible.

USDA restrictions on slaughter/processing facilities were also discussed; particularly as it has an impact on potential growth opportunities for producers. These restrictions have an impact on both federal and state licensed facilities. The lack of commercial processing in Maine is a significant barrier to growth.

We also discussed the 2012 Farm Bill including programs that could help increase the national sheep inventory. Maine producers have started an ambitious effort to increase sheep production in Maine that mirrors the ASI efforts and Farm Bill programs such as a retained ewe lamb program could be very useful here.

Steve Lee from the American Sheep and Goat Center (ASGC) was able to join me for the meeting with Senator Snowe. Steve is the Executive Director of the ASGC which operates out of Rockland, Maine. I hope to introduce Steve to Maine producers at some point and provide the opportunity for producers to learn about the resources available from ASGC.

On Friday, we met with USDA officials. Dr. John Clifford, Administrator for Veterinary Services informed us that there is a significant increase in Foot and Mouth Disease around the world and that depopulation is no longer the primary tool to deal with disease outbreaks. Vaccines have become the accepted tool. The scrapie program is now estimated to be complete by 2017 instead of the original 2010. USDA is considering regionalizing scrapie free status prior to 2017. Dr. Clifford also informed us that the appearance of NOR-98 will not pose any threat to exports.

Next, Dr. Edward Avalos, Under Secretary for Marketing and Regulatory Services discussed the Department's emphasis on stimulating rural economic development. He also reaffirmed his commitment to getting the Sheep Improvement Center funded. If they can get an interim final rule printed, appointments to the board could be made by December. Grants available from the Sheep Improvement Center could be crucial to the ASI sheep inventory growth project. One producer cited a recent economic study that projected that 1 full time job can be created for every increase of 85 production ewes.

Bill Clay, Deputy Administrator for Wildlife Services presented some interesting predation information from the latest NAIS Survey. In 2005 there was a loss of $35 million to the sheep and goat industries from predation. Sixty-three percent of that was from coyotes and 18% from dogs. This compares to a $21.6 loss in 1990 with a similar breakdown. That is a huge increase and is yet another impediment to growth in the sheep industry. Wildlife Services funding has recently come under heavy attack from the animal activist groups, so we must be diligent about communicating the value of their services to our respective delegations.

The real take home message from visiting with our delegation is that although a lot of information floats through the Senator's and Representative's offices, it seldom becomes "real" until they hear it directly from real producers. All four of our delegation were very appreciative of the visit and expressed a desire to stay in more regular touch.

Although all of the staffers were impressive, Terry McNaughton from Senator Snowe's office and William Perry from Representative Michaud's office stood out with their breadth of knowledge about agriculture. Erin McGuire, from Representative Pingree's Portland office is regularly attending AGCOM meetings and is becoming well versed in Maine agriculture issues. I believe our delegation can only provide effective agricultural leadership if we continue to engage them on a regular basis and I found them very receptive. I hope to have the opportunity to participate in more of these trips and encourage other producers to consider attending. Let's make a goal of having at least three Maine producers on next year's trip!

participated in the "What Maine Harvests" farm tour for candidates on Tuesday sponsored by the AG Council of Maine. We toured 5 farms to show the vitality of agriculture and its role in our economy. I wore 2 hats, 1 as candidate and 1 representing the Maine's sheep industry who donated lamb for dinner. I was able to provide a presentation on Maine's sheep industry's past, present, and exciting future.

SHEEP MANAGEMENT during Breeding Season

A management calendar of suggested practices to follow is useful to the beginning as well as experienced producers in managing the sheep flock. Sheep production evolves around the lambing season. Therefore, the production cycle starts approximately 6 months prior to the date you want your first lambs to be born. The following guidelines are not intended to fit every sheep operation but merely serve as suggested practices that might be useful if they fit your operation. Because every sheep operation is different, a separate sheep calendar should be tailored to fit a flock's needs.

PRIOR TO BREEDING

Purchase rams 45-60 days prior to start of breeding season.

Drench ewes and rams for internal parasites.

Trim feet (do rams 30 days prior to start of breeding season).

Shear rams.

Provide cool environment for rams.

Condition rams by giving some grain if too thin.

Shoot for a 3.5 body condition score.

Vaccinate ewes for campylobacteriosis (vibrio) and enzootic abortion (EAE).

Begin flushing ewes 2-3 weeks prior to start of breeding season and continue into breeding.

BREEDING

Use marker on rams - change color every 17 days.

Observe breeding activity of rams, remove boss rams, rotate rams.

If weather is hot, run rams with ewes at night and keep in cool environment during day.

Remove rams after 51 days.

Message from the Maine Sheep Breeders Association President
Phillip Webster

Greetings,

What a wonderful summer we have had to date. Hay and grain will be bountiful this fall and after the past several summers we all need plentiful harvest, robust grains and reasonable feed costs.

If you plan to have January lambs you will need to start preparing for summer breeding season. This includes checking for soundness in the rams, flushing the ewes and checking for worms before turning the ram in for breeding. One of my greatest pleasures during breeding season is pairing the ewe genetics with the right ram and anticipating the “next great one”.

Enjoy the summer months and circle your calendar for our annual meeting October 23, 2010 to be held at KVCC in Fairfield.

Phil
